NEW FILM AND TELEVISION PRODUCTION COMPANY IN NEW MEXICO

May 12, 2016, Tierra Amarilla, New Mexico...The Hollywood Connection, L.L.C., New Mexico's newest film and television production company, has opened its doors for business in Tierra Amarilla. Headed up by David Rambaldi, a former Hollywood development executive and producer with over 300 feature films to his credit, and actor, producer, musician, composer, high-tech and social media expert, Gary Harber, The Hollywood Connection now offers line production services, script reading and analysis, and location scouting and management in Northern New Mexico.

The Hollywood Connection was conceived after Mr. Rambaldi and Mr. Harber worked as Background Artists on numerous film and television productions in New Mexico where they personally observed the film making process from a Background Artist's perspective. This often meant low wages, unequal treatment compared to crew, a lower level of food at meals and craft services, and rarely a second meal at all after 12 hours of work. There were a couple of well appreciated exceptions where everyone, cast and crew, were treated with the same special, sincerely thankful attention. Mr. Rambaldi has come out of 15 years of retirement and pledges to make every effort to help improve these issues, starting with The Hollywood Connection. Mr. Rambaldi and Mr. Harber believe in and are endeavoring to make real for everyone that famous line from the Clint Eastwood movie, "Bronco Billy," "You can be anything you want. All you have to do is go out and become it."

The Hollywood Connection is a fair wage company. Its mission is to provide Hollywood level film production services from within New Mexico, to provide film and television production work opportunities and fair wages for New Mexicans, especially Background Artists, and to treat everyone equally and with respect.

David Rambaldi has written and produced numerous feature films including the 80's cult classic, "Slave Master," "Eyes of the Beholder," "Blade Boxer," and "Pipeline to Atlantis." David, as Vice President of Acquisitions and Development for three of executive producer Mark Damon's companies, Vision International, MDP Worldwide, and Mark Damon Productions, developed the shooting scripts on such projects as, "Disney's The Jungle Book," "Johnny Mnemonic" with Keanu Reeves for Warner Brothers, "Never Talk to Strangers" with Rebecca De Mornay, "Double Impact" with Jean Claude Van Damme, "Neil Simons' Broadway Bound," "Attack of the 50 Foot Woman" with Darrel Hannah for HBO, and Dolph Lundgren's "Universal Soldier." As Director of Development for Esparza/Katz Productions, David helped develop the feature film "Selena" with Jennifer Lopez, "Introducing Dorothy Dandridge," which garnered an Emmy for Halle Berry, and "Teddy Roosevelt and the Rough Riders" for Ted Turner's TNT. In 2014, David produced and directed the documentary "Sapphire Sun," featuring David Allen Hammond. David Allen Hammond has co-written six songs on two Grammy nominated record albums.

Gary Harber is an actor, composer, musician, animator, photographer and software and applications developer with 30 years of professional experience in software development and website design. Mr. Harber is proficient in tax law compliance for the New Mexico Film Production Tax Credit.

Mark Headley, with over 50 feature film credits as Line-Producer, will be the Line-Producer. Mr. Headley first worked with David Rambaldi over 20 years ago when David directed for the cable television series, "Playboy's Secret Confessions and Fantasies."
